III. PRESENTATIONS

1. Chris Rowllins, Fiducient Advisors - Second Quarter 2024 review.

Mr. Rowllins started by reviewing the Governance calendar and the financial obligations and responsibilities for each quarter. For this quarter's (Q2) review the focus is on the investment, portfolio expense and liquidity review. For Q2 fixed income was the best performing asset class.

Notables-

- The anticipated five or six Fed rate cuts never occurred.
- The unemployment rate has increased to 4.1%, the highest level since November 2021.

- Although inflation rates have come down rates are still above the 2% Fed inflation target.
- Small cap markets were under pressure in July.
- International markets displayed mixed performances. China performed better than previously, and European markets moved lower.
- Emerging markets were up 5%, which was one of the better performing asset classes.
- Real Assets were up 6% on a one-year basis.
- Large technology/AI driven companies such as Microsoft and Apple are still leading the markets.

Portfolio:

- $2.6 million in gains over one-year.
- Approximately 3% is allocated to cash, which is earning around 5%. Cash is used for benefit payments.
- A 41% target for fixed income fell 1% short. Baird and Harbor are the core managers within fixed income.
- Black Rock has been a clear winner in the portfolio.
- Domestic equity is above target at 32.8%.
- There was a meaningful slug in the S&P 500.
- There were modest allocations in the small cap sector.
- 21% allocation to International markets.
- The one-year return was just under 10%.

The Q2 report includes a focus on the international sleeve. Mr. Rowlins said there is no recommendation to change the overall allocation since it should remain at 20% but rather a change to the underlying manager structure. Mr. Rowlins followed up on T. Rowe's move to "watch status" which was highlighted in the Flash memo. He said it's recommended that due to the new managers' lack of experience as a portfolio manager it's an opportunity to step outside of T. Rowe and add in other managers. Mr. Rowlins also suggested moving away from Invesco. The recommendation is to replace current managers T. Rowe Price Overseas and Invesco Developing Markets with two developed market managers, Dodge & Cox, and John Hancock (International Dynamic Growth sub advised by Axiom) and two emerging market managers Arga and Wasatch. Also, recommendation to reduce passive allocation in favor of active management.

Mr. Panosky asked how the fees of Dodge & Cox and John Hancock compared to T. Rowe and Invesco. Mr. Rowlins answered that the fees would be higher, but it would be warranted given the net performance these managers have delivered. Mr. Rowlins added that he could return for the September meeting with a fee structure and the Board could look more closely at performance of the recommended managers. Mr. Codding requested an "Underlying Investment Management Fees report" for the four recommended managers, Mr. Rowlins said he could have the reports ready for September.
